

The major goal of this course is to introduce students to the basic constituents of language: sounds, words, and sentences; the analysis and description of such constituents in addition to understanding their relationships and the effect of non-linguistic factors on those relationships, including the social, geographical, political and cultural, etc... factors.