

Description of materials according to plan 11

1501438

Cloud Computing

1501430

Cloud computing has become everywhere. It started with storing files on the cloud and retrieving them, and recently the cloud includes many services that make computing ubiquitous. Cloud computing is growing and it provides services to different levels of users from beginners to professionals. This course discusses all aspects of cloud computing, its applications, services, deployment models, and migration strategies.